PLAYERS AS LEADERS* TO DRILL THE FANS

New York, June 22.—Declaring ball players of the American League have been drilled to a point where they now are able to drill others, Capt. T. L. Huston, president of the Yankees, suggested today that the fans should be given the opportunity to form companies under direction of the players.

"I suggest that each club form a company of 150 fans," wrote this energetic father of the idea, which started real soldiering in the American League. "Make them members of the home guard, and let the ball players drill them daily, giving annual passes to all those who attend drill regularly."

St. Paul, Minn., June 22.—Although he bears fourteen bullet scars received in the earlier battles about Ypres, Charlie McCarthy, the Canadian boxer, a former member of the "Princess Fats," was accepted as a recruit today for the First Minnesota Artillery. The examining doctor declared his physical condition good in spite of the wounds.

McCarthy appeared in several bouts in the Twelfth Corps since his discharge from the Canadian troops.

Sport Mysteries.

On certain days a batsman swings
Upon the belly pill:
He lands upon it with a thud
And drives it where he will;
And then the next day, in a trance,
He paddles like a Lis;
I do not know why this is so—
I only know it is.

On certain days I cannot hit
A shot with any club;
I miss the wee ones on the green
And flounder like a dub;
On other days with simple stroke
I make the pellet whizz;
I do not know why this is so—
I only know it is.

The Pitching Test.

"The last of pitching ability," notes an exchange, "is not in games won and lost, but in the number of earned runs allowed by a pitcher." This is the system which the American League has adopted. It sounds reasonable enough, but, after all, is it the main test? Take the case of Christy Mathewson. When Matty was working an earned run meant nothing to him at all. When the score was 1-0 or 2-0 or 3-0 he was out there working at top speed. But let the Giants get him five or six runs, and what happened? Immediately Matty began to ease up and save his arm for another day. He could see no reason in pitching his shoulder off when he had a fat margin to work on. With Matty it was a case of ease up as easy a route as possible, and save, wherever the occasion offered, his best stuff for another start.

You may recall how Matty used to win one game 1-0, and a few days later pick up another 5 to 6. He was frequently batted hard, but in the main only on those days when his mates were also scoring heavily. Last season Alexander was the only pitcher good for thirty victories. The thirty-game winners are now almost extinct. Yet Matty averaged thirty victories a year for six consecutive seasons—from 1903 through 1908—mainly by working when he had to and resting when the chance arrived to pike along at an easy clip.

Test of Class.

The test of class is ability to adjust one's game to the occasion—to be able to ease off when the chance arrives, and then get back at top speed when the call comes.

Johnny Ball, one of the greatest of all golfers, would on one day meet an opponent who had an 83, and Ball would win 2 and 1. The next day he might meet a man who had 74, and Ball again would win 2 and 1. He had such fine control of his game that he could purposely ease up for a rest and save his best pace for a harder match.

Then the average comes to this: If he starts to easing up or loafing he finds it impossible to get going again. When the call comes for a spurt he finds his game is gone.

Colin was no great breaker. There were other horses which ran in faster time. But Colin could always travel just fast enough to win. At some period of the race he set a pace so fast no rival entry could keep it, after which Colin took his time in driving the drive, using only as much speed as he needed to get there first.

How to Be an Umpire.

An umpire should stand up and call
Each passing out—each strike and ball;
He should not try and counter back
With any sulphur-lined attack,
And if the player throws a fit,
He merely has to mutter—"Git!"
The while his thumb may delegate
The road where clubhouse showers wait.

Col Bert Leston Taylor in "Golf Illustrated" suggests that "the open stance is better for hoeling." This is an unimportant detail. In doing the main thing is the proper grip and to keep one's eye on the weed. An hour of hoeling will generally keep one's head down. Also one's back.

"Where would the Red Sox be without Babe Ruth?" asks an exchange. Why bother? The Red Sox are not without Babe Ruth.

In the same way, how rich would John D. Rockefeller be without his money?

Ferdie Schupp, of the Giants, is verging upon July without a defeat. Rube Marquard carried his winning ways to July 7, in 1912, before he got his range. But at this date Rube had fourteen straight victories to Schupp's eight.

"Have you ever noticed," comments Jack Doyle, "how much surer the outfielder who has not got it is than the one who says 'I have it'?" The 1-got-iters are a cinch.

CARROLL RUNNERS JOIN RANKS OF U. S.

Answering the call to colors has put the Carroll Institute cross-country team out of the running, as several of its members have joined the different branches of the military service.

Johnnie Bolack, well known among the many local runners, has joined the navy. So have Shanny, Dougherty, and Lyons are at present in other branches.

But two of the Carroll Institute runners remain at home, namely, Lynch and Healy, and as both of these men are married they too, would no doubt have joined with the teammates.

GRIFFS TAKE FINAL GAME FROM MACKS

Hurlers Pounded When Nationals Beat Athletics, 6 to 5.

Clark Griffith just had to get his Nationals off on the longest road trip of the season ahead of the Mackmen in the battle for the cellar championship, and yesterday the Griffithmen landed the edge from the Stumblers, 6 to 5. The Griffithmen jumped a few points ahead of the Mackmen in the standing, by grabbing off a six-run affair in the final home game until July 2.

Harper opened the battle on the strike line for the Nationals, but after faltering along for three innings, in which the energy hit his twisters for six hits and four runs, he was sent to the showers and a hurried call made for Jimmy Shaw.

Shaw started off like a $1,000,000-dollar, fanning the first three men that faced him, but in the sixth he was nicked for a trio of extra bases, and the Athletics one run. In the last three frames Shaw held the enemy safe, allowing one hit in the ninth, but the batter never reached second base as the next three men were easily disposed of by the infield.

Beloid, who started the game for the visitors, was treated to a bombardment. After Johnson had aided to Bodie, Foster hit to left for a single. Milan doubled to right, scoring Foster. Rice struck out, but Morgan slipped single through the box and Milan scampered home.

Falkenberg took up the burden in the second and breezed through this inning and third but the Nationals went after him and scored four. A base on balls to Morgan started his downfall, for Jameson moved Ray over to right field and scored single. Eddie Alsmith, who had been substituted for John Henry, cleared the bases with three-base swoop far over Strunk's head.

Foster opened the sixth with a walk to first and he immediately swiped second from where he scored on Milan's second hit. Rice uncorred a double to right field and single to Morgan's hit to right field. In the last three innings Meyers held the home folks safe as he did not allow any liberties with his delivery and only one man reached first base. The score:

CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE STAGING MASONIC GAME

GEORGE M. EVANS, Chairman of Committee Staging Masonic Game.

MASONIC TEAMS IN ANNUAL GAME TODAY

Miss Stinson, Aviatix, May Alight Before Start of Contest.

One of the largest crowds which have ever attended a local amateur baseball game is expected to turn out for the annual Masonic League Park today at the American League Park when the Shrine and Grotto nine meet.

As both teams have been practicing diligently for several days, and every other arrangement pertaining to the amusement of the fans has been completed, nothing remains undone but the struggle between the two teams.

It also has been arranged to stage a parade before the game starts, with many prominent Masons taking part.

Those in automobiles who will take part in the parade will meet at the Masonic Temple, Thirteenth and H streets northwest, at 1 o'clock. From there they will proceed down I street to Eighteenth street to Pennsylvania avenue to Madison place, then around the Treasury and come into Pennsylvania avenue again at Fifteenth street. From Fifteenth street the parade will journey to the Peace Monument, circle it and proceed back to Tenth street, out Tenth street to Rhode Island avenue, up Rhode Island avenue to Seventh street to the ball park.

The game is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock and the fans will be treated to a number of thrills if present plans carry.

President Wilson has been invited to attend, and Miss Katherine Stinson, the noted aviatrix, who has recently flown from Buffalo in the interest of the Red Cross fund, may be allowed to land in the baseball park at the conclusion of the flight. She will distribute Red Cross propaganda at the game.

Henry B. F. Macfarland, chairman of the Red Cross committee in this city, is expected to speak in the interest of the Red Cross work here.

"Stunts" have been arranged by the followers of each team, but what they are could not be learned yesterday. Each hopes to have something original to spring on the other to bring a laugh from the crowd present.

Both the Shrine and Grotto bands will be present to furnish music for the occasion, and it is said that S. Goldsmith, monarch of the Grotto, has something up his sleeve to "pull off" on the Shrine which should be the big scream of the day.

The silver trophy is now on exhibition at one of the local jewelry stores, and it will be presented to the winner of the contest immediately at its conclusion. The presentation will be formal and is to be made by James W. Whitten, grand master of the District of Columbia Gold baseballs, also will be given to each member of the winning team, as in the past years, to commemorate the occasion.
